Principal

Dear Families,

Commemorating ANZAC Day last week with a focus on service and given the incredible work of our SES teams in getting our state of NSW back to working order and now those who have gone to assist in Nepal, it is a timely reminder to reflect on the good that is done and achieved within our own communities, local, nationally and internationally. I include the words of Pope Francis who praises those Christians who are out ‘in the field’; binding wounds and bringing hope to people’s lives:

“… we must not forget how many Christians are giving their lives in love. They help so many people to be healed or to die in peace in makeshift hospitals. They are present to those enslaved by different addictions in the poorest places on earth. They devote themselves to the education of children and young people. They take care of the elderly who have been forgotten by everyone else. They look for ways to communicate values in hostile environments. They are dedicated in many other ways to showing an immense love of humanity inspired by the God who became man. I am grateful for the beautiful example given to me by so many Christians who joyfully sacrifice their lives and their time. “

ANZAC Ceremony

Today the school took part in our own rescheduled ANZAC commemoration ceremony. A feature of the ceremony was the presentation to the school by Veronica and Mia from the Civics Team of the pine sapling received last week from the 100 Years 100 boats ceremony held at Collaroy Beach on Saturday. The pine sapling is a genetic descendent of the pine trees from the battle of ‘Lone Pine’ at Gallipoli and was given as memento to symbolise both the passing of our great ANZAC tradition from one generation of Australians to the next in commemoration of a new generation of understanding. The school is now in discussion as to where the pine sapling will be planted in acknowledgement of the centenary of ANZAC Day 1915.
KidsMatter: Social and Emotional Learning

School is not only about reading, writing and maths. It’s also about making friends, learning how to work with others and knowing how to be more responsible for yourself. At St Kieran’s the Pastoral Care School Improvement Plan has as its goal: Implement KidsMatter Primary Framework to build a whole school approach that supports student mental health and wellbeing.

Last term the students in Years 4, 5 & 6 completed a KidsMatter online survey. The results indicate:

- Students feel they belong and feel safe at this school
- Students feel they are cared for as an individual
- This school knows how to deal with bullying and harassment issues
- Teachers encourage students to take on new challenges

Students indicated via this survey that they would like:

- To have greater opportunities to practise building friendships and managing emotions
- Know how to manage emotions when things are difficult
- Talk to someone when they have a problem that they need help with.

As part of our social skills program, Jane Nethery, previously a trainer with KidsMatter and now part of the pastoral care team at the CSO, is coming to St Kieran’s to deliver a sequence of learning outcomes in the area of personal development with our Year 5 girls. This is an exciting opportunity for our students and links in very well with the survey with students having opportunities to practise social skills.

FEELINGS are IMPORTANT

Children’s feelings are often intense. They can be quickly taken over by feelings of excitement, frustration, fear or joy! When feelings take over children’s behaviour they can find it difficult to manage without adult support. This is why learning to recognise and manage feelings is a very important part of children’s social and emotional development. Understanding that all sorts of feelings are normal, that they can be named, and that there are ways of handling them, are the first things children need to learn about feelings. Understanding that feelings affect behaviour, and being able to recognise how this happens are important first steps for learning to manage feelings.

Being able to manage feelings, get on with others and solve problems really helps children learn better and feel better.

How can parents and carers help children manage feelings?

1. Notice feelings: Before we can learn how to control feelings, we first have to notice them. You can help your child/ren notice feelings by noticing them yourself and giving them labels: happy sad, excited, frustrated, angry, embarrassed, surprised, etc. Giving feelings names helps to make them more manageable for children.

2. Talk about everyday feelings: Talking to children about what it’s like when you are sad, angry, nervous or excited helps them to find ways to express their feelings without having to act them out through negative behaviours. Children learn these skills best when they hear adults and peers using words to express feelings and when they are encouraged to use words like this too.

3. Create a space to talk about difficult feelings: Help children to separate a feeling from a difficult reaction by helping them name it. Being able to say or think “I am feeling angry” means that children don’t have to act really angry before anyone takes notice. It allows them to choose how they will respond. The same idea works with other difficult feelings like nervousness or fear.

Travel (to and from school) on Buses

Many of our families take the opportunity for travel to and from school on buses. This mode of arrival and dismissal from school is certainly to be encouraged as it brings many benefits to both the children and their families as well as to the dismissal procedures in the afternoon. However, when this option is taken it is important that students are aware of the safe and appropriate use of this mode of transport. I would encourage parents to continue the conversation with their children about safe and appropriate behaviours for bus travel. Thank you.

The Parent Education Sessions in Numeracy will be held on 12 & 19 May in the I Centre. Responses have been coming in this week from interested parents and places are filling up fast. If you haven’t yet had a chance to respond and are interested in attending, I would urge you to fill in the reply form at the end of this newsletter before places fill up. I’m looking forward to working with the group of parents who will be attending. The discussion, learning and “Aha” moments are always inspiring!

I was watching a morning show on TV over the weekend and the presenters were interviewing a lecturer in Mathematics from the University of Western Sydney. They were discussing the importance of a strong foundation in mathematical understanding in order to enable students to grow into adults who would be “Financially Literate”. The discussion was interesting but something that really struck a chord with me was a comment the lecturer made regarding attitudes towards Mathematics. She stated that socially it was not “acceptable” to admit to being poor in Literacy (Reading, Writing etc) but that it seems more socially “acceptable” to admit to not being “good at Maths”. It started me thinking….How many times have we heard someone say that? Is this something said to children? “I wasn’t good at Maths when I was at school.” Does this create a “closed mindset” when it comes to learning Maths? Certainly thought provoking!

Have a lovely weekend,

Marisa Bombardieri
